An Invaluable Gift

Over the many years of my life I have been fortunate enough to have received many gifts. Some were birthday gifts, some were Christmas gifts, some were thank you gifts. A very good friend of mine gave to me a baseball signed by Johnny Bench that I treasure. I have shirts and jerseys in my closet given to me by my wife. And I have a plethora of gift cards still unused. The watch that I wear everyday was a gift from my wife that I treasure because it is from her. The only time I don't wear that watch is when I golf. Recently the watch was off by several hours, and I thought, "Oh no, my watch has died." Thankfully, it is a self-winding watch and just needed me to wear the watch and move around. All of our gifts we have received over the years are precious to us, but they are also subject to the laws of impermanence. In time they will break, wear down and disappear.

However, there are gifts that many of us probably received from our parents. My father taught me how to take care of a car, how to change the oil, fix a flat and tune the engine. He taught me many practical things that have served me well over the years. My mother taught me how to cook, sew and do laundry, again some very practical things. I like to think of them as gifts given to me by my parents. My parents also made me attend the Mountain View Buddhist Temple when I was young. That turned out to be the most valuable gift.

My parents took us to the Mountain View Buddhist Temple where I attended temple Dharma School or Sunday School growing up. Our parents knew that the Buddhist teaching was a gift that would serve us well in our life. The Buddha Dharma are the tools that allow us to see ourselves and life clearly, true and real. Unbeknownst to my parents they were fulfilling the wish of the Buddha by transmitting the dharma to their children. His wish to save all sentient beings.

*"The mind that seeks to save all sentient beings
Is directed to us through Amida's Vow of wisdom,
Those who realize this true entrusting that is directed to us
Attain great, complete nirvana." <sup>1</sup>*

In a world of uncertainty and turmoil, the gift of the Buddhist teaching is invaluable. It is the gift of assurance that despite our situation, no matter the circumstances of our life we are embraced by Amida Buddha.

*"Persons who truly realize shinjin,
Which is directed to them through Amida's Vow of wisdom,
Receive the benefit of being grasped, never to be abandoned;
Hence, they attain the stage equal to perfect enlightenment." <sup>2</sup>*

Dog and Cat Tales

*It was late in the day~just before dusk,
A rustling sound came from dried-up corn husks.
To fend off any creature who may suddenly bite,
I picked up a stick and gripped it real tight*

*As I slowly crept closer~ I could plainly see,
A pair of black eyes peering right back at me.
Flea-bitten~frightened~and sadly malnourished,
Was a hungry~forlorn~and forsaken tourist.*

*We fed and bathed him and spruced him up.
Believe me~ you'll never see a more grateful pup!
Over the years we have had countless pets,
We sheltered~nurtured~and rushed to the Vets.*

*One stormy night~through the "doggie door,"
Appeared a shivering cat as the thunder roared.
After drying her fur~ and hearing her pur-r-r,
She became family forever~happily~for sure.*

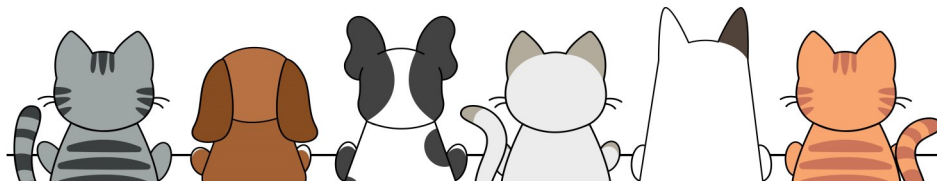

*We should not take lightly a beloved dog's worth.
To prove their love they'll move heaven and earth.
A joyful companion~ they will even play catch.
Just toss a ball and loudly yell "fetch!"*

*Which I often do with my Granddoggie~Poke,
Whose personality is amusing~and a bit hokey.
She will not stop barking until on bended knee,
I gently touch her nose and rub her tummy.*

*The love and affection from kittens and puppies,
Is more than we can ask of sand dabs and guppies.
Be it a hamster~goldfish~ a bird or bunny rabbit,
Caring for a pet is such a rewarding habit.*

*Love definitely makes the world go around,
And that includes a loving animals sound.
So if you are searching for joy and happiness,
By owning a pet~ you are extremely blessed.*
